Department of Communication Studies Workload Guidelines

The Department of Communication Studies is committed to preparing students to be competent communicators. Our faculty are dedicated to developing students' critical and practical, problem-solving and decision-making, and presentation skills with the intent of empowering students to construct and deliver context-specific messages across their personal, social, and professional relationships. To do so, we work diligently to create a communication climate that facilitates respect between and among faculty and students; cultivates a diverse and inclusive culture that allows for the expression of differing thoughts, beliefs, and opinions; and develops student appreciation for lifelong learning.

1. The standard expectations for all faculty members.
a. All faculty must contribute to our department teaching mission and classroom instruction.
b. All faculty must turn in syllabi and book orders by stated deadlines and complete or attend mandatory training.
c. All faculty must attend faculty meetings and serve on department committees.
d. All faculty must contribute to a positive department climate that is inclusive and welcoming to all students, faculty, and staff.
2. Identification of factors that differentiate workload as well as an explanation as to why and how that differentiation system works.
The Department of Communication Studies has tenured and tenure-track faculty members and teaching track faculty members. The job titles are the primary differentiator of workload assignments. One course assignment equals $10 \%$ of annual teaching effort. Below are the standard assignments by category before factoring in any equivalencies:
a. Tenured and tenure-track faculty: $40 \%$ Teaching, $40 \%$ Research, $20 \%$ Service
i. Expected to demonstrate a significant contribution in teaching and maintain a significant level of research and scholarly activity (e.g., producing articles, sponsored research, books).
ii. Four course assignments per year.
iii. Graduate-level course instruction at a rate of at least one per academic year, based on demand and assuming an active research agenda.
b. Teaching track faculty: $80 \%$ Teaching, $0 \%$ Research, $20 \%$ Service
i. Expected to demonstrate a significant contribution in teaching.
ii. Faculty should have the opportunity to teach multiple sections of the same course in each semester as possible.
iii. Faculty should have the opportunity to teach different courses at different levels over time as possible.
3. Identification of research, teaching, and service equivalencies, within and across the three mission areas.

The department has various administrative duties and positions that are evaluated as Service and provide teaching equivalencies (course reassignments). Substantive administration and management of sponsored research also has a teaching equivalency.

These equivalencies are included in the table below:

| Research | Teaching | Service |
| Administration and  management of external  sponsored research  provided the funding is  sufficient to cover the cost  of instructional  reassignment (no more  than one course per  semester) | 3 Credit Course |  |

NOTE: Student Success Coordinator serves as department advisor and recruitment/retention specialist. At the time of document drafting the department chair was in the process of reviewing and restructuring available positions.

By mutual agreement and based on department/WVU needs, it is possible that faculty members with the same title (e.g., tenured associate professor) could meet 100\% effort in different ways.
4. An outline of multiple pathways for faculty to be successful

The chart below identifies various unit specific pathways for Communication Studies faculty.

*Faculty members who wish to pursue an alternate pathway to promotion that is different from the requirements outlined in their letter of appointment and/or the department's promotion and tenure guidelines must negotiate a written agreement with the department chair and the College. The agreement must include a defined period of time which the faculty member will pursue the new pathway before being eligible for promotion. Depending on staffing demands, not all pathways may be available.
